GADDIE'S GALL

Long on Promises, But Short on Pay—Parsonage Rent and Pastor's Salary Long Overdue.

Marion Falcon: In view of the fact that Dr. David W. Gaddie, Republican Nominee for Congress, in the Fourth District, has industriously objected to Congressman Ben Johnson contributing to churches and charitable institutions upon the grounds that he did so for political reasons, we herewith print the following statement signed by Mr. R. L. Parrott, Financial Secretary of the Lebanon Baptist Church, which is self explanatory:

"R. L. Parrott says that he is the Financial Secretary of the Lebanon Baptist Church and the books of said church are in his charge and custody. The subscription list of the members of said church to the pastor's salary (in book form) shows that for the year 1894 D. W. Gaddie and wife subscribed $10.00 to said salary, and paid $4.00 thereon, leaving $6.00 still due. The records show that the year 1894 was the last year said Gaddie appears in said subscription book. Said Gaddie at that time rented a portion of the Baptist Parsonage in Lebanon. He left there about the time stated, leaving some rent due, which I understand to be $12.50.

"About ten or fifteen days ago said D. W. Gaddie called on me and, among other things, said he owed the Baptist Church of Lebanon $18.00 and wanted to give a check for it. Without referring to the books I accepted his check for $18.00. No interest was demanded by me or paid by him.

(Signed) "R. L. PARROTT."

"Oct. 9th, 1908.

We ask the readers of the Falcon to compare Dr. Gaddie's record with that of Mr. Johnson's in reference to contributing to churches then draw your own conclusions.

DEMOCRATIC TRUTHS

Told by Judge Jas. P. Gregory And Hon. D. H. Smith at Court House Monday.

Last Monday, County Court day, Judge Jas. P. Gregory, of Louisville, and ex-Congressman David H. Smith, of Hodgenville, addressed a large crowd of Democrats at the Court House. The court room was packed with enthusiastic voters who gave the speakers their undivided attention.

Hon. T. Scott Mayes presided over the meeting and introduced both speakers. He recalled Dr. Gaddie, the Republican candidate for Congress, and his mode of campaign.

Judge Gregory's preliminary remarks were eulogistic of Congressman Johnson, whose re-election to Congress he urged. He also ridiculed the arguments of Dr. Gaddie. Judge Gregory dealt chiefly with the guarantee of bank deposits, showing that with such a law and the banks being under the government supervision the depositors would be insured against loss by mismanagement and rascality. Judge Gregory touched upon the election of United States Senators by a direct vote of the people and said that the people could see the benefit of such a law allowing a direct vote, by the miscarriage of the peoples will in Kentucky last winter when Bradley was elected Senator.

Mr. Smith is always a favorite in Springfield and he was given the closest attention as he showed the in-iquities of the protective tariff and the danger to our freedom of trust encroachment. Mr. Smith's attacks on corruption in politics, on bribery whether the bribe be a million dollars or a pint of whisky, and on those who buy and sell votes at election time was scathing and was applauded by all present, regardless of party affiliations. Both speakers eulogized Bryan and predicted that after March 4, 1909, he would be president.

STRANGE HAPPENING

Spring of Water Bursts Forth In the Dryest Part of Mercer County.

Harrodsburg Herald: A most singular phenomena was witnessed last Thursday on the farm of Mr. Andy Lawson, on the Falls Run pike, in the west end of the county. Owing to the continuous drought the ponds and wells on Mr. Lawson's farm had gone dry and he was driving his stock to water and was getting drinking water just anywhere that commodity might be found, when, to his amazement and great joy on the day mentioned, a spring broke out on his place near the pike, running an abundance of the clearest and finest of water and forming a branch through his farm. The strange part of the matter is that even in the wettest weather no indications of a stream being near this place was ever observed. Mr. Lawson is overjoyed and has gone about the neighborhood telling everybody of the spring and that he now has plenty of water and is inviting everybody to come and help themselves.

CIRCUIT COURT CONVENES

Judge Thurman Charges Grand Jury—List of Jurors—Jim McKenna Convicted.

Circuit Court convened Monday, Judge I. H. Thurman presiding. The first business transacted was the empanelling and charging the grand jury. Judge Thurman delivered his usual strong, clear and forceful charge. He impressed upon the grand jury that it was their duty to indict whenever the evidence justified whether the petit jury should convict or not. He stated that if the grand juries indicted more often for the lesser offenses that there would not be so many of the greater crimes to occupy their attention. That if there were more indictments and convictions for carrying concealed deadly weapons that there would be fewer cases of murder. The judge strongly condemned night riding, stating that whenever evidence was brought before the grand jury that depredations of this character had been committed it was his duty to indict. The court also instructed the jury as to the liquor laws and as to other offenses enumerated in the Statutes.

GRAND JURY.

Geo. T. Mayes, Foreman; T. J. Montgomery, Clerk; W. M. Adams, Sheriff; Willard Thompson, Geo. H. Royalty, S. E. Shewmaker, Wm. Lair, Joe Higdon, John D. Shields, P. S. Baker, Preston Prather, N. B. Royalt.

PETIT JURY.

S. T. Hungate, F. M. Carney, Jas. W. Pinkston, W. A. Roberts, J. D. Keeling, B. B. Leachman, S. G. Logsdon, Jerome Colvin, J. Rich Smith, W. H. Lesschman, D. S. Bottom, George Lair, J. P. Edelen, Merritt Hungate, J. M. Anderson, J. M. Sale, Fred Chestnut, J. S. Hayes, F. R. Neale, J. L. Moore, George Bowen, J. G. Howell, C. L. Price, A. C. Yates.

Jim McKenna, a young negro who was indicted several months ago on the charge of breaking into the barber shop of Tom Hardesty and taking some laundry therefrom, was tried yesterday and given one year in the penitentiary.

34 Votes For Bryan.

The following is taken from the Ewing County Enquirer, of recent date, and Mr. T. B. Flaughter, of this place, boasts of being one of the 34 who will support the next President, he being one of the grandsons-in-law of Mr. Stockdale:

"Uncle Sanford Stockdale is entitled to the palm. He is for Bryan and has 5 sons, 8 sons-in-law, 9 grandsons and 11 grandsons-in-law—34 in all, who are for Bryan. He says these are not all of his progeny but somehow a few black sheep (Republicans) got mixed into the flock. It seems to us however that 34 votes entitles him to a special letter of thanks and congratulation from Bryan."

A CARD

To the Voters of Washington County.

In canvassing the county I find that some of the gentlemen opposing me for the Democratic nomination for Sheriff of Washington county are industriously circulating a report that questions my record as a voter. I was very much surprised at such a question being raised as I have never missed a chance to vote for a Democratic nominee in my life. They say that I did not vote the Democratic ticket last fall, when the fact is I didn't have a vote at all. Unfortunate circumstances forced me to move to Springfield Sept. 25, too late to claim a vote, and I consulted Mr. W. C. McChord, an attorney and prominent candidate, as to my right to claim a vote in Precinct No. 1, where I came from, and he said I could not, but asked me to go there and do what I could for the nominees on election day. I did so willingly, and do not think it is fair in my opponents to tell the people that I did not vote for the ticket last fall unless they tell them why I did not. That was the only time I have failed to vote since I cast my first vote in 1881.

Very respectfully,
S. J. ANDERSON.

HORRIBLE ACCIDENT

Charley and Millard Hale Almost Blown to Death by Railroad Torpedo.

Danville Advocate: Charley and Millard Hale, 6 and 9 years of age respectively, were horribly wounded by the explosion of a railroad torpedo at the home of their parents at Brumfield. The accident occurred about 7 o'clock yesterday morning. Their father, Mr. Lycurgus Hale, is chief mechanic at the Arnold Buggy Works on Second street and was in Danville when the horrible accident took place. He was immediately called up over the phone and hastened to Brumfield. The little fellows had been playing along the railroad and discovered a torpedo on the track which had been set by the trainmen as a signal. They had often seen the giant engines pass over the torpedoes, making them pop like big fire crackers and thought that they would try to do the same thing. The torpedoes are covered with a heavy piece of tin and look harmless to the uninitiated. The boys carried the torpedo home and placed it on a large rock in the front yard and armed themselves with bricks which they threw at it. The first brick struck the center and the torpedo exploded with powerful report. Mr. Hale, who was in the house unaware of what the children were doing was shocked almost to prostration by the terrible noise, but regaining herself rushed to the front door to witness the fearful sight of her boys, lying bleeding and wounded upon the ground. Millard, 6 years old, received 21 wounds, mainly on the head and face. Great pieces of flesh were torn from his face by the flying fragments of tin. Charley only received one wound. A large fragment of tin from the torpedo, with a knife-like edge, struck his right side, went through his clothing and gouged a place a half inch wide, a quarter of an inch deep, and nearly a half foot in length. A physician was hastily summoned from Perryville and the wounds of the children were dressed and it is thought that they will recover unless complications arise. Mr. Hale returned to Danville this morning, but will go again to Brumfield today.

Would Mortgage the Farm.

A farmer on Rural Route 2, Empire, Ga., W. A. Floyd by name, says: "Bucklen's Arnica Salve cured the two worst sores I ever saw: one on my hand and one on my leg. It is worth more than its weight in gold. I would not be without it if I had to mortgage the farm to get it." Only 25c. at Hayden & Robertson's drug store.

Alleged "Shiners" Arrested.

Lebanon Enterprise: William Downs, Jim Boy Greenwell and Will Clark, all of whom live near Balltown, in Nelson county, were arrested Monday night by Deputy United States Marshal W. Harry Amos and Special Agent J. T. Parrott, and brought to this city Wednesday morning. In the afternoon the men were arraigned before United States Commissioner Charles C. Boldrick, and each waived examination. They were placed under bonds of $300 for their appearance before the Federal grand jury in Louisville next March. Downs was charged with moonshining, while Greenwell and Clark are accused of having sold whisky at a picnic near Gettysburg last July. Gregory Jenkins, charged with moonshining, was taken into custody Wednesday morning at New Haven by Officers Amos and Parrott, and brought to Lebanon for an examining trial before Commissioner Boldrick. Jenkins, too, waived examination, and was held to answer at the March term of the Federal grand jury under a $300 bond. All of the men gave bail, and were temporarily dismissed. Gussie Cissell, who lives near Balltown, was summoned to appear at the recent session of Federal court in Louisville as a witness, but when the particular case was called Gussie was nix. An attachment was issued for him, and Officers Amos and Parrott placed him under arrest a few days ago. When he appeared before Commissioner Boldrick the court permitted him to return home after exacting of him a bond in the sum of $50 for his appearance at the March term of court in Louisville.

Rock Fight.

Harrodsburg Herald: A battle royal took place at the forks of the road on Cane Run street Monday afternoon between a man and his wife, whose names are not known. It seems that the woman demanded that her husband get out of a wagon which he was in with some other men, and that he declined to comply with the order when she opened up on him with some stones with such precision of aim that he hastily climbed out of the wagon. When he got down he had a hatchet in his hand which he flourished several times, but did not use it in self-defense, but discretion evidently got the better part of valor and he resorted to the same tactics as employed by his pugnacious other half. An animated rock-slinging contest ensued in which the female came out more than victor.

NEW SHORT STORIES

Novelist in Low Esteem.

Among many odd characters whom Miss Kate Sanborn saw and studied with observing eyes in California was a blunt old man who sat beside her at the hotel table. He resented it that she did not do as much as he thought she should for the public entertainment. Finally one day he boldly addressed her:

"Ahem! I hear you can be funny?" There was no response, and he muttered to himself:

"I don't much believe she can do anything. Don't look like it." And then to me:

"Well, now, if you can be funny why don't you?"

I could not help laughing.

"Yes, if you can you ought to go into the parlor every night and show what you can do and amuse us. Why, I told Quilletta—you know 'bout Quilletta? Awfully funny fellow: good company, you see. Says I: 'Quilletta, I like you. Now, if you'll stay here I'll give you a cottage, rent free, all summer, but you must agree to be funny every night and keep the ball a-rollin'.' Now, we want you to get up and do something to amuse the guests. When I told you to be amused; something that will set us laughing!"

"I UNDERSTAND YOU ARE A DEALER IN TOBACCO."

"Mr. Brushwood," said I, "I understand you are a dealer in tobacco?" "Yes, mum, and you won't find finer tobacco anywhere in this world than what's got my name on it."

"Well, when I notice you freely distributing tobacco in the parlor evenings I'll follow on behind you and try to amuse as a condensed circus. I'm not lacking in philanthropy. I only need to be roused by your noble example and sustained by your influence."

He looked disgusted, granted his disapproval, backed his chair out from the table and muttered as he left the dining room:

"She's a queer duck! Don't amount to much anyway. Impudent fool!"

Washington Star.

A Friar's Brevity.

Dallas Welford, the English comedian, was named appointed to a toast at a banquet at the Players' club, but the speaker who preceded him proved long-winded, and therefore a committee came to Mr. Welford and asked him in a whisper to cut his address very short.

"I have been asked to cut my speech short," Mr. Welford said when he rose. "All I wish is that I could cut it as short as a friar once did with his sermon."

"This friar on the feast of St. Stephen had been appointed to preach on the saint, but at the last minute a priest asked him to make the sermon brief, as the hour was already late. The friar accordingly ascended the pulpit and delivered the following address:

"Brethren, twelve months ago I preached to you a sermon. The point whose feast we are celebrating today, as I have not heard of any other deeds performed by the saint in the interim I have nothing to add to what I said on the former occasion."

"Thereupon the friar blessed them and departed."—Buffalo Enquirer.

Way of Southern Sheriff.

"Down in Alabama," said John D. Fearhake, "there's a deputy marshal who doesn't let any such trifles as extradition laws stop him. Term of court was about to begin at one time, and a gentleman who was out on bail was reported to be enjoying himself over in Georgia. Deputy Jim went after him. Next day he telegraphed the judge, 'I have persuaded him to come.'"

"A few days later he rode into town on a mule, leading the prisoner, tied snugly with a clothesline. The prisoner looked as if he had seen hard service."

"Why, for heaven's sake, Jim," said the judge, "you didn't make him walk all the way from Georgia, did you?"

"No, sir," said Jim.

"I hope not," said the judge.

"No," said Jim. "Part of the way I drug him, and when we came to the Tallapoosa river he swam."—New York Telegraph.

A Grim Reminder.

"The late Bishop Fowler," said a Buffalo Methodist, "had the happiest knack of illustrating with one luminous sentence traits of character, faults, virtues."

"Once, I remember, talking of gambling houses and the little mercy shown to ruined players, Bishop Fowler, with a grim smile, said: 'The men who took John's money were the same remember, who threw him overboard.' Things like that still happen."—Buffalo Courier.

$65,500 FARM

As a Bridal Present From Father to Son.—500 Acres in Two Tracts.

Harrodsburg Democrat: One of the largest real estate deals consummated in this section in some time was made yesterday when Dr. S. O. Eades, of this city, sold his magnificent farm on the Danville pike, just beyond Cove Spring, to Mr. A. E. Hundley, of Danville. The consideration was $50,000. The farm contains 387 acres, which makes the price per acre about $125.

Mr. Hundley also bought yesterday the farm of Mr. S. O. Milton, which adjoins the Dr. Eades farm, at $115 per acre. This farm contains 113 acres. The total price paid by Mr. Hundley for the two places was $65,500, and makes a tract of 500 acres.

Dr. Eades bought the place from Mr. Hundley three years ago for $48,000. It is one of the best farms in the Blue Grass section and is in a high state of cultivation. Dr. Eades had just about completed sowing 100 acres of it in wheat. The Milton tract is also a very fine farm and in an excellent condition. Both contain modern homes and splendid outbuildings.

It is understood that Mr. Hundley bought the two farms for his son, Mr. Guy Hundley, and will present them to him tomorrow as a bridal present. His son will be married in Danville tomorrow to Miss Eliza Jones, of that place. Miss Jones is said to be quite wealthy.

Couldn't Vote for Henry.

Harrodsburg Democrat: A good joke is being told on himself by Mr. Henry Gibbs, who is making the race for County Clerk of Mercer. Mr. Gibbs is naturally a most obliging and accommodating young man, by reason of which he has won for himself many warm friends throughout the county. His long-suit is hobnobbing with the "country boys" and he never loses an opportunity to "make good" with them when they come to town. However, he says that he was taught a lesson a few days ago that he will not forget during the campaign. A country man drove into town for a wagonload of

Mr. Gibbs, seeing an opportunity to ingratiate himself in the heart of the countrymen, proceeded to help the man load the brick, passing them to the man on the wagon from the ground. When he had finished loading the wagon, Mr. Gibbs handed the man one of his cards and told him he would appreciate it if he would vote for him. The countryman looked scrutinizingly at the card and then at the young candidate and said: "My friend, I am sorry, but I live in Washington county."

Had a Close Call.

Mrs. Ada L. Croom, the widely known proprietor of the Croom Hotel, Vaughn, Miss., says: "For several months I suffered with a severe cough, and consumption seemed to have its grip on me, when a friend recommended Dr. King's New Discovery. I began taking it, and three bottles affected a complete cure." The fame of this life saving cough and cold remedy, and lung and throat healer is world wide. A Diplomatic Encounter.

(Original.)

I will not dwell on how I, a woman, got into the foreign secret service. Father died insolvent. Mother and I were reduced from affluence to positive want. I applied to a friend in the foreign office for a clerkship. It happened that at the time the Americans were aiming at a treaty with Japan that would be prejudicial to our interests. An emissary of the state department at Washington was on his way via the Mediterranean with the treaty. The vessel he traveled in was to stop at Marseilles.

I confess I was shocked at the proposition that was made me—I, who had never done a mean thing in my life—to wheedle a knowledge of the drift of the treaty out of the American. But the reward was great, enough to keep mother and me in comparative comfort.

In social life I had been considered what the Americans call "a flirt," but I was never dishonorable. I would never attack a man unless he was insulted that way himself. Now I was expected to win one simply for pay.

The temptation was too great for me. I yielded. I boarded the ship at Marseilles. Roger Sutherland, whom I was to snare, was a most looking, quiet man. I soon made his acquaintance, and he seemed to take to me at once. He said that if it were not for my accent he would not believe me to be English; that I had all the sprightliness of an American girl. The game I was playing was natural to me. I didn't have to try to win him. If I had possibly I might have failed.

But, as to stealing the information, I didn't know where to begin. We had passed through the canal before I ventured to make a move in that direction. I began by asking his occupation. He prevaricated. I teased him. He told me that he had a government position, and that was all that I could get out of him for a long while. Then suddenly he told me everything. I wondered why he who had so long been reticent should have changed so quickly. He answered my every question, and truthfully. The treaty was in his trunk in his stateroom. Did he not fear it would be stolen? No. There was a lock on the trunk that had been made for it. The key was of a peculiar kind. The next time we were on deck together, feigning to be moved by a natural feminine curiosity, I teased him to let me see the key. He took it out of his pocket and handed it to me. Feigning an intention to frighten him I ran to the side of the ship and held it in my fist over the water. He didn't even follow me. So I took it back and gave it to him. He had provided myself with a bit of wax and had squeezed an impression of the key.

Pretending that I had lost the key of my own trunk, I called for one of the ship's mechanics to make me another from the wax impression. My victim invariably spent an hour or more after dinner in the smoking room. I took a great risk. I entered his stateroom and with the key made from the impression opened the trunk. Found the treaty, took it to my stateroom, copied it in its entirety—and got it back to the trunk in plenty of time to avoid getting caught.

With success came the pricking of conscience. I told my victim of my circumstances, the loss of my father, my effort to obtain an engagement and ended by falsely telling him that I was going out to India to be a governess. From that moment his manner changed toward me. I had considered before that my success was due to having won his heart. Now I was sure of it. Then he asked me to be his wife.

Now, for the first time, I realized that if I had won him I had been won in winning him. Whatever was good in my nature rebelled at my trickery. I longed to confess it and throw myself upon his mercy. But I dared not. From loving me he would despise me. I told him that I could never be his wife; that there was a barrier between us; that I was unworthy of him. He soothingly reassured me, said my conscience was abnormally sensitive; that he was sure one so lovely could not do anything very wrong.

The night before we reached Bombay we were on deck together under the starry heavens. "Sweetheart," he said, "we part tomorrow. It rests with you whether our parting shall be forever or I shall call on you on my return. You are not cut out for a diplomat, but you will make a good wife for one."

"A diplomat! I a diplomat!" He took my hand. "I suspected you the moment you began to play your game, and I played my cards to trap you. I gave you my key on purpose and knew how you used it by traces of wax adhering to it. Certain pages of the manuscript you stole were loosely tacked together, and I found them detached. I was disappointed to learn all this, but when afterward you told me how you had been tempted I pitied you. You are a lady and out of your element. I would be sorry for your losing your pay if I wished you to earn your money in that way."

"And my copy of the cipher dispatch?" I faltered. "I will give it to you at once."

"Don't hurry. It is no cipher, but a jumble of letters and numbers."

"And do you mean that you can love one who has made this abject attempt?"

"If we only loved those who were perfect there would be no marriage. You have already been pardoned for a brief time by circumstances from your natural self."

The ABC and XYZ of ADVERTISING

A SERIES OF TEN TALKS ON ADVERTISING No. 3

written by Seymour Eaton of Philadelphia

The owner of a retail hat store writes me to ask how to advertise hats.

I don't know. I haven't thought much about hats. Ten to one I should do something revolutionary; perhaps advertise to buy the customer's old hat. As a rule he is glad to get rid of it. Of course that would cut the profit in two, but then the sales would multiply by ten, or perhaps by fifty, and the store would get talked about.

Perhaps I wouldn't do that at all. I make the suggestion simply to let this hat dealer know that if I owned his store I should get up and shake myself; make some sort of a noise; not stand around behind the counter leaning on everything, waiting for a customer who is six blocks away on the other side of the street going north to change his mind, come back, cross over, and by mere chance in his hurry notice that I have hats in my window.

Tell a hundred thousand men who wear hats and who buy two hundred thousand hats a year that you have the goods; the kind they are looking for. If that doesn't wake them up then give away a hat-band and a necktie and a pair of gloves; cram the hats full of ham sandwiches; do something. Your business is to sell hats, not store them.

I have no patience with the retail dealer who depends on the sidewalk and the weather for his trade.

But it isn't necessary to be sensational; simply make readable news of your advertising. It is the business of the newspapers to distribute news and if I want a moderate priced stylish hat your advertising is ten times more interesting to me than the Associated Press dispatch that some galoot in Oklahoma or Texas hanged himself.

Good advertising is news. Print this on the ceiling over your bed so that you will read it first thing every morning when you wake up

Keep your eye on fashion.

Fashion is today the biggest influence in the world; not necessarily the best influence; but the biggest. We don't control fashion; fashion controls us. It always comes down the pike with a whirl. When the storm breaks haul in your advertising canvas and stop buying. Fashion hurricanes are short-lived.

Enlarging Your Business

If you are in business and you want to make more money you will read every word we have to say. Are you spending your money for advertising in haphazard fashion as if intended for charity, or do you advertise for direct results?

Did you ever stop to think how your advertising can be made a source of profit to you, and how its value can be measured in dollars and cents. If you have not, you are throwing money away.

Advertising is a modern business necessity, but must be conducted on business principles. If you are not satisfied with your advertising you should set aside a certain amount of money to be spent annually, and then carefully note the effect it has in increasing your volume of business; whether a 10, 20 or 30 per cent increase. If you watch this gain from year to year you will become intensely interested in your advertising, and how you can make it enlarge your business.

If you try this method we believe you will not want to let a single issue of this paper go to press without something from your store.

We will be pleased to have you call on us, and we will take pleasure in explaining our annual contract for so many inches, and how it can be used in whatever amount that seems necessary to you.

If you can sell goods over the counter we can also show you why this paper will best serve your interests when you want to reach the people of this community.

DEMOCRATIC CANDIDATES

What the Exchanges Have to Say About Judge I. H. Thurman
and Hon. R. L. Durham.

Marion Falcon: The Democratic Committee of the 11th Judicial district having ordered a primary for December 19, to select nominees for the offices of circuit judge and commonwealth's attorney, the present excellent and efficient incumbent, Judge I. H. Thurman, announces in this issue his candidacy for re-election to the office of circuit judge. The Falcon feels that anything complimentary it could say of Judge Thurman would be merely speaking the sentiments of his legion of admirers all over the district, but the custom of accompanying announcements with a notice is time honored, and we adhere to it with pleasure. The people of this district know that a more learned, fair-minded or scrupulous judge never presided over the courts of this district, or any district in the state, for that matter. He has played no favorites, and every man has had an equal chance for justice in his court. He has conducted his court in a business-like way, and his judicious management has perhaps saved the people more money than they have realized. His administration has been highly complimented by newspapers in the district, and deservedly so, for county newspapers do not commend public officials unless they deserve it. Judge Thurman is asking the voters for an endorsement, and the Falcon bespeaks for his candidacy consideration upon the part of its readers.

Taylor County Sentinel: In this issue appears the announcement of Judge I. H. Thurman, of Washington county, as a Democratic candidate for Circuit Judge in this, the Eleventh Judicial District, subject to the action of the Democratic party. The primary will take place in the District on Saturday, December 19, 1908.

This intelligence is nothing new to the people of the District, who were wanting him to make the race, and the people will see to it that he will be nominated by his party and triumphantly elected at the general election, November 1909.

Lebanon Enterprise: We are announcing this week, the candidacy of Judge I. H. Thurman for Circuit Judge of the Eleventh Judicial District. Judge Thurman has held this office for nearly a term and has made a fine Judge. He knows the law and enforces it without fear or favor. He is as free from bias as any man could be and this virtue, along with his great ability, high integrity, promptness and dispatch qualifies him eminently for the office. The phrase "the right man in the right place" fits his case exactly and his friends believe that the citizens of the district will show their high appreciation of his services as a Judge by electing him to succeed himself by an overwhelming vote.

Taylor County Sentinel: Elsewhere in this issue will be found the announcement of Hon. R. L. Durham as a Democratic candidate for Commonwealth's Attorney from this, the Eleventh Judicial District, composed of the counties of Washington, Marion, Green and Taylor. Mr. Durham needs no introduction to the voters of Taylor county. He has faithfully served the State in a fearless manner during the term just now drawing to a successful close. He is a full-fledged Democrat, and one always ready to aid his political friends with both his time and money. He will probably not have opposition in his party for the nomination, and should opposition materialize later on in the campaign his opponent will know that he has had the fight of his life in even endeavoring to defeat him in the primary, which will take place on Saturday, December 19, 1908. Mr. Durham will poll an immense vote in this county, and here's wishing him success in his race for the position he seeks. No better man in the district could be selected than Mr. Durham.

Lebanon Enterprise: In this issue of The Enterprise appears the announce-Reunion.

The reunion of the veterans of the Mexican War, of the two armies of the Civil War, of the Spanish War and the Ladies of the Confederacy and the Ladies of the G. A. R., which was held in a grove on the place of Squire Nymrod Hendren, was a pronounced success in every way. The clouds which threatened rain early in the day cleared away, leaving a bright sky and a balmy atmosphere. A crowd of at least one thousand people was in attendance to enjoy the day with the veterans and at sunset all left feeling better in having spent the day as they had. A band was present throughout the day, playing the National Airs and other suitable selections. A bountiful dinner was served beneath the old forest trees and in the afternoon addresses were delivered by Messrs. Geo. W. Colvin, W. F. Grigsby and Marshall Duncan.

The veterans organized in the afternoon, the object being to bring the old soldiers into closer relation and to provide for holding an annual reunion. In this organization there are representatives from the Mexican veterans, the Union and Confederate Armies and the Spanish-American War.

The reason was an inspiration to those present in that they saw that this is no longer a divided country, but that all the old soldiers now have a common aim, which is the advancement of our country. The gratitude of the veterans and visitors is due Squire Hendren for planning and carrying into effect such a reunion.

Falcon: Quite a number of business houses are now supplied with telephones and the tinkling of the little bell sounds like music, after so long a silence. The boxes are being put in as fast as the force can install them and it will not be long now until the system is complete.

For the fourth time in three weeks the home of Mr. Forrest L. Putnam in Louisville was burglarized Wednesday morning. A purse containing $300 was taken from under the pillow on which Mrs. Putnam slept. The empty purse and her fine gold watch were found in the hall of the residence, presumably having been dropped by the burglar. These robberies have always followed the departure of Mr. Putnam from home, he being a traveling salesman.

Mr. D. K. Campbell, of Greensburg, an employee of the Lebanon Home Telephone Company, had the misfortune to break the large bone in his right forearm, Wednesday at noon, in front of the residence of Mr. R. G. Goodin on Walnut street, in this city. He had been engaged in attaching a lead cable to the cable-wire on that street and was descending a rope, preparatory to going to dinner. The pulley to which the rope was attached slipped, throwing the young man to the ground with the above result.

MEDLEY-McCAWLEY

The event of last week in Springfield social circles was the marriage of Miss Alethea Medley and Mr. W. Howell McCawley, which was solemnized at St. Dominic's Catholic church last Saturday morning at 9 o'clock. The ceremony was performed by Rev. P. F.
Hennessey and was celebrated with Nuptial High Mass. The color scheme was green and white and the church was beautifully decorated in these colors, the altar having been converted into a veritable bank of palms, cypresses and chrysanthemums, the arch under which the ceremony was performed was constructed of green with a white wedding bell suspended from the center, under which the couple stood. The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Ben Medley, while the groom's brother, Mr. Herbert Mc-Cawley, acted as best man. The ushers were Messrs. Will Medley, Wathen Simms and Will Wharton, of Springfield, and Heffernan Rubel, of Lebanon.

While the beautiful ceremony was being performed Miss Isabel Medley, sister of the bride, sang an Ave Maria and Miss Mary Haydon sang an Ave Maria by Rossini.

The bride was beautifully dressed in a gown of white satin with picture hat to match, and carried a bunch of chrysanthemums.

The presents received by the bridal couple were numerous and very handsome.

After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs.
Geo. E. Medley gave a breakfast at their home in honor of the bridal party and relatives of Mr. and Mrs. McCawley. Those present in addition to the bridal party and the immediate members of the family were Mr. and Mrs.
C. J. Haydon, Mrs. Ben Spalding, Mr.
Ben F. Simms, Mrs. Sallie W. Simms,
Mr. Thos. W. Simms, Sr., Miss Flagg
Simms, Miss Stella Simms, Miss Margaret Spalding, Mrs. McCawley and Miss McCawley, mother and sister of the groom.

Mr. and Mrs. McCawley took the train for Louisville Saturday where they were entertained by Mrs. McCawley, mother of the groom, prior to their bridal trip.

attended the wedding were Mrs. Mc-Cawley, Miss McCawley and Mr. Her-

DEEP CREEK.

As I sat thinking the other day of the last time it rained this summer the wind began to blow, signifying a coming rain, and in a few minutes it was here, to the delight of every one. I think this is the beginning of the long period of occasional rains which sometimes makes our beautiful grounds in some places look like swamps in winter when the rain falls hard.

The veil of sadness and regret fell over our vicinity when we learned Thursday morning that during the night fire had disturbed the slumbers of Mr. Willie Lay, wife and little five-year-old child. It had spread beyond control when some one of the family awoke to find danger was around them, and, Mr. Lay has been in ill health for quite a long time, there was no one on hand except his wife to fight to save some of her household furniture and their belongings. As far as I have learned only a few things were saved.
Mr. Lay was compelled to go to a nearby house for shelter, which he reached almost entirely exhausted, carrying his only child. The following day found him ill and as yet no reports of his improvement have been received. Our hearts pour out our great sorrow with these who have been turned out homeless by the fire.

Desiring to have a day of pleasant travel we selected Danville as the place where we would spend our pleasant time. So on Thursday morning Mrs.
Eva Elliott, my sister-in-law, and myself started early so we could have plenty of time to call on old friends while in town. We arrived at our destination about nine o'clock and our first call was on Mrs. Thomas Young, with whom we accepted the invitation to dine. After a couple of hours stay we decided to go over to our father's business place and surprise him and Brother Johnnie, which we surely did. Father took us over the building which is nearing completion, and while there we had the pleasure of calling on the Misses Sallee, who occupy part of the building. As it was 12 o'clock we returned to Mrs. Young's for dinner. Immediately after dinner we took a walk down to the spot I still hold dear, the Kentucky School for the Deaf, where I was so proud and happy to find all my old schoolmates enjoying school life. What a happy and sweet group they were when we came upon them. There was one sad thing to blight my happiness while there, and it was that the dear

Superintendent and his wife whom I desired so much to see, were not there.
But I was pleased to learn that he was enjoying an absence for his health in the Cumberland mountains, where he is improving nicely. Was so sorry I did not have time to visit any of my old teachers, but was delighted to see my old Supervisor, Miss Stephens, who had acted as a mother to me during my long school life and upon whom my gratitude will ever rest. I left them with many happy wishes and a prayer for a prosperous year.

Weak
Heart Action

There are certain nerves that control the action of the heart. When they become weak, the heart action is impaired. Short breath, pain around heart, choking sensation, palpitation, fluttering, feeble or rapid pulse, and other distressing symptoms follow. Dr. Miles Heart Cure is a medicine especially adapted to the needs of these nerves and the muscular structure of the heart itself. It is a strengthening tonic that brings speedy relief.

Try it.
"For years I suffered with what I thought was stomach trouble, when the doctors told me I had heart trouble. I had tried many remedies, when the Dr. Miles' Almanac came into my hands, and I concluded to try Dr. Miles' Heart Cure. I have taken three bottles, and now I am not suffering at all. I am cured and this medicine did it. I write this in the hope that it will attract the at-

WOMAN AND FASHION

New Waist Model.
This is a blouse of batiste linen. The upper part is made with little groups of fine lengthwise tucks and ornamented with platings of the material. The lower part is encased with a group of tucks, which make a right

OF BATHING LINEN.
angled turn on each side of the front disappearing under the girdle.
The sleeves are trimmed to correspond, and both sleeves and blouse are ornamented with little pearl buttons.

Latest Lingerie Hints.
Silk petticoats with embroidery ruffles and satin petticoats with linen ruffles are among the novelties. And this offers a suggestion to the woman who has a worn-out satin petticoat which might be freshened with a tan colored linen ruffle. An old satin petticoat may be brought back to life by the addition of a ruffle of dark brown and blue checked silk above which there is a puffing of plain brown silk. The dainty white lingerie combinations are worn by women who want to appear slim, and the newest of these are finished with a handsome trimming of wide insertion around the neck, through which there are drawn some colored embroidery threads to give the appearance of an embroidered undershirt.

The Parted Pompadour.
If a woman can arrange a pompadour with a part in it she is lucky indeed. This classic petticoat of hairdressing has come back into first favor. The hair is not smoothly brushed back from the parting. We doubt if even in classic days the lines were so severe. It took the trying days of the civil war to invent such severity. The hair is fluffed out at the sides, and if one feels that it is barbarism to roughen the hair from beneath, which does break its ends and takes all the luster out of it, then one may resort to either of the two methods—use small, thin puffs on a string under the hair over the ears, or a soft roll of malines in the same shade as the hair. Then at the back twist the hair into a soft figure 8.

Street Costume of Black and White.
A smart coat and skirt costume of striped flannel is here shown, the model being especially worthy of notice in the way the striped material is cut

A THREE PIECE SUIT.
The collar and buttons are of black more silk, and the coat is worn with a 'old vest of white flannel edged with a little oriental embroidery.

No More Folds.
In the matter of folds on her frocks the fashionable girl waves her hands faintly, against at the mention. Folds are seldom to be seen in the new skirts and then usually broken by form. Embroidery, on the contrary, fairly flowers upon modish frocks and is to be seen in designs wrought upon the whole gown in panel effects, ornamental pieces and borders for over skirt effects, which are not really over skirts.

FOR THE CHILDREN

National Expansion.
Some patient man has given an additional interest to the much talked of subject of national expansion by figuring out the rate at which the United States has been growing each minute during the past 117 years. He makes it thirty-three acres a minute, and this is how he makes his calculation: The original thirteen colonies comprised 558,678,390 acres. The Louisiana purchase brought us 745,103,380 acres; the Florida cession, 45,170,540 acres; the annexation of Texas, 170,247,040 acres; the Mexican cession, 400,563,340 acres; the purchase of Alaska, 383,646,720 acres, and the acquisition of Porto Rico, Tutuila, the Philippines, Guam and Hawaii, 98,492,190 acres. Now, says this patient and ingenious figure, there were in the 117 years 71,495,200 minutes, and dividing the number of acres acquired by the number of minutes, we have a fraction more than thirty-three acres a minute. At the same time, he says, our population grew at the rate of one inhabitant and one-third a minute. Who says this is not a great country?—Chicago News.

Throwing Light.
This is a guessing game played by any number of persons. Two of the players privately agree on some object and then converse about it without naming it, trying to mystify the rest of the company. This is called "throwing light" on the subject chosen. As soon as one of the others thinks he has guessed it he joins in the conversation and aids in throwing light. If one of the original players thinks from what he says that the guess is not correct, he says, "I challenge you," and the guess must be whispered in his ear. If it is incorrect, the guesser must sit with a handkerchief over his face till he is able to "throw light" correctly. The game goes on thus till only one of the players is left in the dark. It is allowable to choose two words of the same sound, but different meanings, and use either meaning at pleasure, so as to make "throwing light" all the more difficult.

The Barbary Horse.
A learned man of England has recently produced historical and scientific evidence showing that north Africa and not Arabia has the honor of originating the thoroughbred. All the finest horses of the world have sprung from the Barbary, and the Barbary horse came from the zebra of northeast Africa or from some closely allied species now extinct. King Solomon more than 900 years before the Christian era imported fine horses from Egypt, and Egypt got them from Libya, in Africa. The Arabs conquered north Africa and in doing so got possession of the Barbary horse. But though it thus appears that Arabia is not the original home of the thoroughbred, it is his home now, and too much cannot be said in praise of the Arab's intelligent, affectionate care for the noble animal.

Pointed Puns.
What is a good thing to part with? A comb.
What vine does beef grow on? The bo-vine.
What is the best way to keep fish from smelling? Cut off their noses.
Why has a chambermaid more lives than a cat? Because each morning she turns to dust.
Why is a nice but uncultured girl like brown sugar? Because she is sweet, but unrefined.
Why is a postman in danger of losing his way? Because he is guided by the directions of strangers.
You're just the man I'm laying for, said the brick mason to the contractor.

Greedy Little Salmon.
Little creatures may be very greedy and yet not be able to eat much because of their size, as was illustrated in New York in the case of a batch of about 2,000 little salmon which had been hatched out at the aquarium recently. These young fishes, each about two inches long, would eat so much that their little stomachs fairly stuck out, and yet to feed the whole 2,000 took daily only one pound of liver and a quart of herring roe, both chopped fine.

Conundrums.
What ship has two mates, but no captain? Courtship.
How did the man die who fell in a barrel of brandy? In good spirits.
What is the difference between stabbing a man and killing a hog? One is assault with intent to kill, the other killing with intent to salt.

Didn't Like That Part.
Jean was a little Canadian girl, and her mother was teaching her the words of "God Save the King." When they came to the words, "Long to reign over us," Jean refused to say them, remarking in pleading tones, "Oh, mamma, I don't want to get all wet!"

Bows and Braids.
When little girls most anywhere are found with hair cut very short and straight around And one big bow a-top their tresses caught You may be sure they've never even Of growing up or longer skirts, although They may be even eight or nine or so. It's in the way their hair is done, you know.

When little girls most anywhere we find With hair all parted down and tied behind Their ears in two big bow decked braids be sure They're feeling quite grown up and can't endure That you should think they still are little. Go. Not if they're only five or six or so! It's in the way their hair is done, you know.

LONG RUN

Sometime it seems necessary to lay aside home cares and neighborhood responsibilities and leave our friends and all behind and hie away to some obscure part of the country, where we can do as we please and get up of mornings without having to give an account to any one. So on the morning of October 7th in company with neighbor J. L. Harmon we started for the mountains. At Aliceton we boarded the L. and N. train which for some fourteen miles skirts the Knobs, which stand out on our right in bold relief against the azure sky, while on our left blue grass fields and pleasant homes are to be seen.

In less than an hour we were in Junction City, where it was necessary for us to stop over until next morning, so resigning ourselves to our fate we proceeded to hunt up our friend, Marquis Anderson. We found him pleasantly situated in the southern edge of that little city. At first he did not recognize us, but on hearing our name he at once knew us. He was born December 26th, 1844, on what was known as the old Anderson homestead north of Mackville, Ky. His mother was a Miss Sallie Kimberlin, whose father settled at the mouth of Long Run in 1785, but his friend was reared just southwest of Fottsville, near the Marion line. He joined the Union army June, 1862, and believes he is the only one living in Boyle county who voted for Abe Lincoln. Twenty-four years ago he moved to Junction City, where he worked at a stove factory for twenty-one years, and was foreman for eighteen years of that time. The following morning he took us out on his farm where from a high, rugged point one can see Danville, four miles away, Moreland seven and Lancaster twelve miles, and with the aid of a glass under a favorable sun Chaplin town, in Eastern Nelson may be seen, while a mile to the northeast is seen the place where the old rock house stood, the home of Kentucky's first Governor, which was once known as "Traveler's Rest," but was set on fire and burned down some two years ago by one of his great-grandsons (to the regret of all) while trying to burn out some wasp nests. About eight years ago Jacob, Mr. Anderson's only son, became offended at his father and ran away, making his way to Fottsville, thence to New Orleans. He joined the U. S. Navy, spent two years at the Naval Academy and four years in actual service and has recently been promoted. He is now on the Cruiser Cleveland, stationed at Hong Kong, China, and has not been at home in these many years. Mr. Anderson and family own about 170 acres of land. Ties they expect to sell and invest in land in his native country, where he expects to make his future home. We were kindly treated at this home by both parents and daughters. Miss Georgie A., who is assistant school-teacher, and Miss Maggie, who is assistant postmistress.

Friend Harmon spent the night with Mr. John Carlton, an old friend from Marion county. But our waiting time was over, so bidding our friends good-bye we were soon on the C. & S. road. We quickly passed Milledgeville, the Knobs still on our right and nice pasture fields on the left. Around the McKinney is the finest land we saw on our trip. The country soon gets broken and interesting. On both sides little valleys are scattered between tall Knobs. We now cross both forks of Green River at King's Mountain. All at once we plunged into darkness and smoke almost filled the car for we were passing through a tunnel nine-tenths of a mile long. Waynesburg, with its nice new bank, stands on a flat ridge, with piles and piles of railroad ties and lumber scattered around, which seemed to be the chief product of the country, which must have been brought from a distance for the land is practically stripped of its timber.

We are now on a tableland which lays fairly well. We see small shocks of indifferent corn, while other fields still standing are topped. No grass fields now and only a scrubby growth of white oak with grove after grove of tall, small pine. Butknobs, which is just over in Pulaski, with Floyd and Pulaski counties come and go while the face of the country remains unbroken. Along this stretch of rail box-cabin after cabin with a few nice dwellings may be seen. The country is more level now. Then comes Science Hill, Norwood and Somerset, the latter the capital of Pulaski county, where the country lays fairly well; blue grass fields may be seen now. We are still on a ridge between Fishing Creek and Pitman Creek. At Elihu the country is more broken. Pitman is crossed and Cedar Grove comes.

We crossed the Cumberland river just before reaching Burnside, where we see picturesque cliffs on either side of that stream. We are now in Whitley county. Traveling through Pulaski means something, for it has 870 square miles and is nearly three times as large as Washington county and is the largest county in the State. At Tateville the Cumberland river is again sighted. At Sloan's Valley we ran through our fourth tunnel.

Oh, the Knobs! The Knobs which seem to be one vast expanse of green stretching away on either side for miles with a few grassy plots along the valley which is yet untouched by the hoary frost, while the golden tints which October only can bring, gives a sombre coloring to this waste of beauty. From the cite and scenery around Greenwood it should have been named Alpine.

Although it is raining now and a little gloomy but how it stirs the heart of Nature's Lover to drink in these beautiful views of pine and oak groves with Knobs around as they fly by the car windows, for nowhere on our journey was the scenery more interesting, while one short tunnel after another is gone through until nine are passed. Cumberland Falls fly by and the station houses are scarce now, while we emerge into more a open country. I was informed by a lumberman that this land, with the exception of a few patches, for miles around was owned by a man named Stearns.

We are now running along another flat ridge which is covered with the same growth of timber. We now and then see a small straw stack, with small, indifferent corn fields, ran in increasing, while small groups of men and boys may be seen standing around each station.

Whitley, the last station on the Pulaski side and near the line, is passed, while the country remains the same. We are soon in Whitley county and rain is falling faster. Soon we hear the conductor call out "Pine Knot," which reminds us that our journey is almost at an end, and soon we stop in a small town of some five hundred inhabitants and while we are descending the car steps friend Harmon is seen making his way to Fottsville, thence to Taylor county and his ex-pastor, with whom we are to stay for a few days. In our next we expect to tell the reader something of the country, its people and its products.

Mrs. Rodman's Luncheon.

The following was taken from Sunday's Courier Journal:

Mrs. H. D. Rodman was the hostess at a beautiful buffet luncheon given at her country home, "Creekmere," in Shelby county on Thursday afternoon. Several guests from Louisville were present at the luncheon. The decorations were in autumn leaves, chrysanthemums and grapes. In the drawing room and hall great masses of the autumn leaves were employed in the ornamentation.

In the dining-room the refreshment table was artistically decorated, the center of the table having a round mirror on which were clusters of purple and green and pink grapes and around the mirror were giant chrysanthemums in flat effect. The table had a handsome cover of Mexican-drawn work.

Mrs. T. Johnson Clancy, of Louisville, and Miss Rebecca McElroy, of Lebanon, presided at the punch bowl. Mrs. Morris Grifone and Miss Susie Rodman, of Louisville, received the guests in the dining-room.

Mrs. Rodman was assisted in receiving by Mesdames T. J. Young, of Louisville; J. B. Goodpastor, of Owensville; Isaac Thurman, of Springfield; Mrs. Hall and Mrs. Bright, of Shelbyville. There were a hundred and seventeen guests present.

Mr. and Mrs. Rodman will close "Creekmere" the last of November and will be at The Seelbach for the winter. Price $15 per acre.

Death of Mrs. Begley.

Mrs. Areta Begley was born December 26, 1828, and was married in her sixteenth year to Thomas Begley. She is the mother of eight children, four of whom survive her, Mrs. T. W. Rutherford, of Louisville, Ky.; Mr. T. R. Begley, of Texas, Ky.; Mr. S. C. Begley, of Fenwick, Ky.; and Mr. W. W. Begley, of Endo, Ky. She also has sixteen grandchildren who mourn her death.

"I had to break the tender cord, When love has bound the heart, 'Tis hard, so hard to speak the words, 'Tis most forever part. Dearest grandmother, we have laid thee In a peaceful grave's embrace, But thy memory still we cherish, 'Till we see thy heavenly face. Sleep sweetly grandmother in your grave, Your soul has found a place Among the angels gathered 'round God's Holy Throne of Grace. We miss you, but 'tis joy to know Our hearts still fondly love, And that you've found a happier home With those who dwell above."

Oh! grandmother, dear departed one, We look toward the sky, and we mourn for you with mourning hearts And sad tears in our eyes. God wanted you at home with Him, And you obeyed His call. He knew that we all loved you, But He knew He loved you best of all. Rest in peace our dearest grandmother, Your long years have passed away, Thou art gone but not forgotten In the minds of every one. One by one the flowers are taken, One by one the flowers fall, And we carefully remember Pain and sorrow come to all. God has given us rest and taken, Asleep, Asleep in Jesus.
